- Man : (stopping you) Excuse me. Can you tell me the way to the park?
- You : I'm sorry, but there are many parks here. If you know the name, it will be easier to locate it.
- Man : I have the name written in my diary.
Let me check it. It's Gandhi park.
- You: Oh! It is near Jawahar Colony.
- Man : Now can you direct me to the park?
- You: Yes, you can go straight, then from the shop turn left and go straight again. There is a milk shop, from there turn right. You will reach the park.
- Man : I'm sorry, I could not follow what you said.
- You: Don't worry uncle, I will take you to the park, just follow me.
- Man : Thank you, I will follow you.

B. Bhaskar could hear the men thrashing through the woods. He was screaming loudly. Just then the haunting whistle blew right next to him. The poachers and Bhaskar stood silent for one minute. Then the poachers ran for their lives. The long whistle ended. The poachers had left. Bhaskar suddenly heard a voice, "I am here to help you". Bhaskar opened his eyes and saw an old man cutting the rope around his ankle. He was delighted.
